

and the series of lovely pictures presented by the pantomime always insure an enthusiastic reception for this number, only those who have been students of Delors work can properly appreciate the study which such work represents, when well and naturally given, and its great and practical value in all directions, as the very cream of the best school of modern physical culture.

Next was the song, "Inspired Mel," by Miss Mary Grubb. Miss Grubb's voice, a full mezzo soprano, is pure in quality and well suited to the splendid aria. The recitative, sung with much force and spirit, made a fine contrast to the lovely, flowing melody which followed, and in which the beauty of Miss Grubb's voice showed to especial advantage.

Miss Emily Pollock played Liszt's transcription of Rigoletto with brilliancy. Miss Pollock is at her best in the bright, gay passages, and the notes seem fairly to flash from her well-trained fingers.

"Tried by Fire" was written and read by Miss Birdie Wolf, of Piqua, O., whose composition was a graceful analogy between the fire of the kiln and the fire of suffering. It abounded in poetical ideas, deep feeling and noble sentiments. The style was easy and natural and the reading of it most pleasing, reflecting credit on the elocutionary training at the Mount.

The vocal solo, "Summer," by Miss Ida Rice, was an excellent number. She has a clear, bright and flexible voice, well suited to the grace and sunny spirit of the song, which she sang with good effect.

The violin quartette, "Cavatine," by Raff, was greatly appreciated by the audience. The concerted work was excellently rendered, and Miss Moran played the solo with much sweetness and feeling. Misses Frances Sullivan, Grace Pollock and Katherine O'Bryan added much to the rendition.

"The Ballade of Cassandra Brown," a condensed comedy of the most sparkling description, was rendered with fine dramatic effect by Miss Genevieve Thomas, of Leavenworth, Kan., and was greeted with hearty applause at the close.

Schubert's beautiful Impromptu No. 142 displayed to advantage Miss Ada Vankirk's talent. The theme was played with tenderness and warmth; each of the movements, the brilliant first and fourth, the majestic second, and the martial third was artistically interpreted and rendered with fine finish.

The semi-chorus, "The Spanish Gypsy," sung by ten young ladies, made a spirited and brilliant number. Written in a minor key, this tambourine song, with its brilliant rhythm, gives the effect of the aching heart, expressed in the words, as well as the gay dance of the Spaniards. The voices blended admirably, and the ensemble was very fine and reflected much credit on the participants. Misses E. Connelly, M. Grubb, L. Rice, G. Fisher, F. Sullivan, K. Bruce, K. Gleason, M. Lee, E. Pollock, G. Sinn and C. Gutman.

"The Jockey's Story" was well told by Miss Eleanor McCracken, who, while not possessing a voice of great volume, manages it most artistically, so as to meet creditably the somewhat exacting demands of this selection. Her rendition was marked by grace and spirit.

The closing number, Duo Brillante, "Der Fiedermann," is indeed a brilliant composition, and the players, Miss Emily Pollock and Miss Grace Pollock, held the interest of the audience to the very last note, making a fittingly artistic and pleasing finale for the varied and altogether excellent programme.

A diploma and gold medal, for having completed the English course, were conferred on Miss Birdie Wolf, of Piqua, O., and Miss Hattie Sinn, of New York City.

At the conclusion of the programme Right Rev. Bishop Donahue stepped forward and presented the gold medals and diplomas to the two graduates of this year, and the highest honors of the school, consisting of a blue ribbon and silver cross, to Miss Bertha M. Reese, of Clayville, Pa., of middle class one. The bishop was in an especially happy mood and his remarks were greatly enjoyed.

He began by saying that he was really overpowered with apprehension, knowing that the train was waiting and two men in the corner were taking down his remarks on paper, when he wanted to speak unreservedly. But this was a year when other bishops were discussing the new woman. Rt. Rev. Bishop Dow, of Baltimore, and Rev. Arthur Cleveland Cox, of New York, had recently discussed this theme at commencements. He said he knew it was dangerous to speak of it in the presence of so many ladies, but not being married he had no fear of a certain lecture, although he did not know how the others fared. He greatly deplored the yellow novel reading, bicycle riding woman, making many witty and pointed allusions to the so-called new woman.

Continuing, he frankly expressed his pleasure in the exercises, their brevity and high standard. He was very thankful to be at the Mount, made brilliant and glorified by the touch of these young ladies, who living in a healthy moral atmosphere were taught to elevate the standard of modesty, physical reserve and purity, all that make the noble woman. The young people were not taught Greek by the sisters, to prevent them from having good times, with light gladsome hearts, but to try to elevate them in womanly reserve, privacy, delicacy and moral excellence in life, so that they would become the salt and seasoning of the earth.

At the conclusion he congratulated the graduates on their success, gained only by hard study and hard work, and paid a glowing tribute to all.

The audience then dispersed and the commencement day of 1895 was over. Many lingered through the corridors.

The Colerain Oil Well.

The work of drilling was resumed at the Colerain oil well on Tuesday night. There was 900 feet of water in the well, and this was all pumped out before the drilling was resumed. Additional tools and casing are on the ground, and it is thought that there will be no further delay. The well is 1,500 feet deep and will be down to a depth of 2,100 feet by the latter part of next week, by which time the company expects to find oil. It is understood that the parties interested seem confident of success. They have been making efforts to lease more land at Colerain, and for some of it have made liberal offers. Should the test prove successful other wells will be put down at once.
